Tranum's fundraising will now go toward paying for a restaurant to be built for the school. "I'm very proud of him and his school," said Will Tranum, Tranum's father. "They're doing a great job with this." "I'm just blessed," he said. To make a donation, click here. Horse week draws top riders FARMERSVILLE — Local riders trying out for the Kentucky Horse Park's Junior Hunter Series will get a free day's training for a chance to be one of the country's top young riders. The series will take place at the Horse Park Feb. 15-17. All of the classes will be held in the park's indoor arena and covered by a Kentucky Horse Racing Authority (KHRA) license. Riders will show their skills on April 5 at the Horse Park's $300,000 Kentuckiana Derby and $50,000 Kentucky Derby Qualifier. A special invitation will be sent to the top riders for those events. Members of the U.S. Hunter Derby Team also will be invited to the training to give advice and to help the top riders get up to speed. "They have a great opportunity to get good practice rides in an environment they know," said David Patterson, track manager for the Horse Park. Participants will show off their best on-course efforts during a hunter combination session, the first day of the series. Those sessions will be held in the indoor arena as well, and competitors will use a combination of livestock and handmade barbed-wire fences. "This is just one more step in the process that they've been working on for the past couple of years," said instructor Jeff Smith. "They're going to be able to train in an environment that really fits them best." Folks can check out the competition by going online at www.horsepark.org and clicking on
